CRIMES AND CASUALTIES.

MUSSEL, THE EATON MURDERER, CAPTURED IN INDIANA.

Every Business House in an Arkansas Town Set on Fire Simultaneously and Burned to the Ground—A Typical Kentucky Tragedy Near Richmond.

EATON, O., Dec. 22.—At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, William Mussel, murderer of David Christman at this place, was captured near Greencastle, Ind. He applied to a farmer for work on the 19th, and was hired. In the meantime the farmer saw a picture of the murderer, recognized it as his hired man, gave the fellow away, and he was arrested. He will come back with a requisition, and denies the charge of murder.

He arrived here on the 11 o'clock train, and the town is wild with excitement. When the train arrived at the depot the officers in charge of Mussel secreted him, and the train passed on until it came to Main street, where it stopped. A carriage was in waiting, and Mussel was hurried in, and a fast drive was made to the jail, but as the carriage flow through the street the people followed in hot pursuit, and by the time it reached the front of the court house yard, in which the jail is located, upwards of 500 men were surrounding the entrance, and a wilder and more infuriated crowd was never seen. They yelled "shoot him," "hang him," "hang him," and a rush was made to get him from the officers. They drew their revolvers, and driving back the crowd, made a rush and landed Mussel safely behind the bars. After he was in a break was made to enter by the mob, but their movements were not organized and hence not successful. The crowd is still at the jail and the greatest confusion prevails. Mussel was smoking a cigar when he got out of the carriage, but appeared paralyzed with fear and shook like a leaf when he saw the angry faces of the crowd.

Avenge Their Father's Wrongs.

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 22.—A terrible fight occurred Sunday night at the house of Mr. Rice, a prosperous farmer, near Redhouse, this county, between two sons of Rice on one side, and John Shearer, a merchant at Redhouse, on the other, in which Shearer was instantly killed. For some time an undue intimacy is said to have existed between Mrs. Rice and Shearer, and a separation ensued, but Mrs. Rice had returned home, and Mr. Rice was absent. Shearer had been warned by the sons not to come on the place Sunday night about 9 o'clock Shearer entered the room where the two sons were sleeping, and was discovered by them. Shooting immediately began, which lasted for ten seconds, at the end of which time Shearer lay dead on the floor, his pistol near him with every chamber empty. Both barrels of a shotgun used by one son and the chamber of a pistol used by the other son were empty.
